SAN DIEGO, Calif.—John Bouris has his own Project Mercury. He swallowed a thermometer.

Bouris, 33, had the flu and stuck the thermometer in his mouth Wednesday while he was lying in bed.

He fell asleep and woke up 20 minutes later coughing. He jumped out of bed and started searching for the thermometer and then it dawned on him.

The doctor didn't believe him at first but an x-ray showed the thermometer in his stomach.

"The doctor doesn't think surgery will be necessary to remove it," said Bouris.

ORILLIA, Ont. — Where are you, Terry Kruz? For that matter, where did you get to last year?

Terry is an 18-year-old Vancouver youth devoted to folk music. When last heard from he had just left Vancouver, hitch-hiking to the Mariposa Folk Festival here. That was July 24.

He was carrying a guitar and a rucksack and swear he was carrying a guitar and a rucksack and swearing this year he would make it. Terry started out last year the same way. And he made it.

But it took him so long that he trudged into the festival grounds 10 minutes after end of the last concert.

That time, officials learned of his plight and put together a special, free concert for an audience of one. Then he was given a collection of folk records.

This was girlin a chilectury.

This year, festival officials are watching up the road for Terry. If he makes it in time, there's a free pass with his name on it.

QUEBEC - The water tower in suburban Sillery was painted only Thursday to erase the separatist slogan "Quebec libre" daubed on it early in July.

The embassy spokesman said the two marshals would make sure that Soblen was not approached by other passen-gers and that he did not have a chance to wound himself again. McShane was travelling with Soblen when the con-victed spy knifed himself on the flight from Israel July 1 to secure entry into Britain.

El Al's London office re-ceived the British orders and transmitted them at once to its head office in Jerusalem. The airline's office in London will be governed by instruc-tions from Israel.

A high government source in Jerusalem said the Israeli government was "shocked" at the British government's de-mand that the El Al Airline fly the 61-year-old psychiatrist to the United States. The Israeli cabinet was reported planning an emergency meeting to consider its next step.

An Israeli parliamen tary source reported Tuesday that Transport Minister Bar Yehuda had instructed El Al's London office not to accept custody of Soblen again. El Al landed him in Britain July 1 when he slashed a wrist and his abdomen while being flown to New York after Israel ex-

Lessons From a Guinea Pig

A NATION WHICH EVIDENTLY intends to introduce a general plan of medical insurance during the next few years can draw some useful lessons from Saskatchewan, the guinea pig of a great experi-ment. What lessons? Surely these, among others:

First, no federal or provincial government in Canada can ever successfully coerce the medical profession and make doctors work if they don't want to. Even if the Saskatchewan government had broken the doctors' strike, as it failed to do, its insurance scheme would not have functioned satisfactorily. No medical service can operate on the best scientific standards if doctors are dissatisfied and consider themselves ill treated.

The lesson here is that no gov-ernment should attempt to inaugurate medical insurance until it has come to terms with the only men who can treat human illness. Saskatchewan's mistake in going ahead without any advance agreement on the doctor's part will not be repeated in any other province.

Secondly, the Saskatchewan ex-periment demonstrates that the free, personal relationship between doctor and patient cannot be disturbed. Neither of them will permit

The Saskatchewan government says that it never intended to infringe this relationship in any way, but its legislation was read otherwise by the doctors and that was the core of the trouble.

Wisely, the government has rewritten the law to make sure that medicine, except in its financial aspects, will not be under state control or the influence of politics. If the government had made that absolutely clear in its statute at the beginning a great deal of unneces-sary commotion would have been forestalled. Their desperate measures in one province were resented all over the nation-not because they broke the law, as is wrongly suggested, but because they seemed to disregard a sacred moral obligation to the public. Even if they finally defeated the government, the doctors dam-aged themselves severely. Nowhere they wish to repeat that damage.

where does Canada as a whole stand on the problem of medical insur-ance? It stands nowhere definitely at the moment. All our political parties apparently are committed to a nation-wide insurance scheme of some sort later on, but many questions have yet to be answered.

There is something else to consider. Government-operated medical insurance must be financed and it can be financed in the end only by taxes, whatever name is given to them. The amount of the insurance taxes must determine the scope of the medical benefits, Since all Canadians must pay the taxes, they should be giving serious consideration to these questions and to the should be giving serious considera-tion to these questions and to the lessons already learned in Saskatchewan.

Even London, which can present a ewildering rabbit-warren of tiny streets /hen it wants to, can also boast of ircuses such as Piccadilly, squares such as Leicester or Grosvenor, and similar geometric amenities.

But in North America the trend has en away from this adjunct to pleasanter living, and Victoria's growth was no exception.

We can understand James Douglas laying out his little community within the walls of the fort, and making his pathways conform to the rectangular limits of his domain. But when the settlement overflowed the fort's palisades and started to expand north, east and south, the same type of layout was Canada's tragedy at this time is that its federal government is in no condition to do any "very hard thinking" on such a major problem. But European developments will not wait on Ottawa's misconception of the trend of events. The capitals of the ECM countries saw what must be done, London recognized the inevitable, Washington under Mr. Kennedy quickly understood the importance of transatlantic cooperation with the new international market system.

Many persons ask me about the treatment of pernicious anemia. Actually, today, blood specialists look upon this term as a bit archaic, and are more likely to speak of a primary or a megaloblastic anemia, by which they mean a type of anemia in which the cells in the blood are larger than normal, and in which the cause of the anemia is not the loss of much blood from the body—as in the loss of much blood from the body—as in the case of a woman who menstruates exsively or a man who suffers from bleed-

a new approach -7

Many articles are written about education. Educationists criticize our schools; they suggest what should be done. Yet no big changes take place and soon the cycle repeats itself.

Here for the first time I offer a complete programme of education. I will show the drastic changes that are needed, and I will demonstrate how readers can help. This is the 20th Century, the age of astronauts and antibiotics, telstars and television. Efficient offices use electronic computers, wise employers give psychological tests to employees to ensure that they do suitable work.

Schools, however, still use 19th Century methods: chalkboards, mass tuition (often geared to the slowest pupil so that many are bored), non-adjustable desks for all sizes and ages, insufficient individual teaching.

I believe first that a pupil is an individual. He is so regarded by his mother who bore him. He will be so regarded by his employer when he leaves school. He should therefore be treated as an individual while at school.

This means that each pupil should work at his own pace and have a course planned for him alone. It may be beneficial for him to work in a group which provides the stimulus of competition, but it is ludicrous to put him in the same group for each subject.

for him alone. It may be beneficial for him to work in a group which provides the stimulus of competition, but it is ludicrous to put him in the same group for each subject.

A boy or girl may be better at English than mathematics. Why blace him or her in the same group for both? Each bubli should be blaced in a subject-group where others are at the same stage of learning in that subject. This can be done now. It is what will be done in the future using teaching machines. We can start using it now with the personal touch.

Being treated as an individual also means regular testing. The present system generally means three examinations per subject per year. If, a student is feeling ill on the day of the examination, allowance is seldom made. He may fail the year. I advocate frequent testing in all subjects—at least once a month. This means that tutor and pupil both know precisely what progress is being made. Also, so-called modern education tends to concentrate on academic subjects with occasional concessions to physical education. I maintain education means teaching the whole personality—mentally, physically, emotionally and spiritually. Schools are failing when they produce men who can speak two or more languages and solve simultaneous equations but who cannot cope adequately with themselves on other beoole in personal relationships.

The advisacent should be taught to know himself, his strengths and his weaknesses. He should be taught to learn from his mistakes so, that he does not repeat them. He should be taught to cone with personal problems and with people. He should be faught and they must be taught in an adequate programme of education.

A great deal of nonsense is also talked about religious education. I have taught so-called "non-denominational" religion for many years and never had a single

These attributes can be taucht and they must be taught in an accquate programme of education. A great deal of nonsense is also talked about religious education. I have taught so-called "ron-denominational" religion for many years and never had a single complaint from any parent or church minister. A child should be taught about religion and the various churches that exist in his country, so that when he is grown up he can choose to worship God in the way God has created him. We all have gifts differing; some are happier worshipping God elaborately and others simply. It is again a matter for the individual and for educating the individual. Anart from these enrichments, the educational programme I envisage would include all that the Public Schools offer and much more as well. Government inspectors would be welcome arvitme. Parents and others interested would also be welcome. Publis could be enrolled at any-time of the year and age would be no barrier. That is a brief outline of my programme of education, based on 15 years' wide experience as a teacher. I have the nucleus of a staff who agree with these uringiples, and a number of parents have agreed to send their boys as day pupils or hoarders and to my fees.

Government restrictions have meant that the original arrangements for financing the school through a bank have fellen through.

the school through a bank have fallen through.

Are there publicanitited neonle in Victoria who would lend $20,000 over three years to start the school? Alternatively is there anyone who would rent a (very large) house with grounds for the purpose?

They are exihibits in pos-sible charges of theft, retaining stolen property and op-erating a gambling house; and the Gallery must wait for their return until the cases are dealt with.

They will be held until charges arising from an RCMP raid on a mainland summer resort have been dealt with.

Two boatloads of RCMP officers made the raid on the Wigwam Inn last week, and have charged three men with giving $1,000 and the three paintings to an RCMP officer as a bribe.

Part of the gallery's permanent collection, the three paintings have a replacemen value of $3,500.

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a girl I met at college. I graduated this June (she quit after two years) and I want to marry her. She says she loves me but refuses to leave the small town where she was raised. She's close to her family (especially her mother) and says if I get a job in her home town (population 16,000) she'll marry me this Christmas.

Abby, I have a good job with a promising future in my home town (population 26,000), which is only 300 miles from hers. I know my future is here. My friends say I'd be foolish to marry her on her terms. An outsider's opinion is needed.

You (NG MAN WITH)

DEAR ABBY: I guess you can call me a nosy neighbor, but I can't stand by and see a young girl ruined without trying to help. Several other meighbors besides myself have seen a boy slip into this girl's bedroom window after her seen gave me a ticket. I can't get that officer out of my mind. When he wrote down my name and address, I kiddingly told him to call me up down that street every chance I get, but I haven't seen him.

Could he think I am married? How can I find him again? I drive up and down that street every chance I get, but I haven't seen him.

> BRIDGE LESSON By OSWALD JACOBY

Ever since contract experts began to evolve from the earlier day auction players there has been a tendency to treat the forcing two bid as a sort of sacred cow. One group of experts used to insist on a certain game in their own hand before they wot would open with More sensible ones would use the bid with a #J #J85 one trick of game by itself. hand that was within 4 J 1073 4 A 7654 SOUTH (D)

In any, case expert South did not think that his fine hand was worth a force bid and con-tented himself with a mere one spade opening.

Fortunately for him his partner was able to raise to two spades whereupon expert South decided to "take pert language for taking complete control of the bidding and trusting that you will be right.

So expert South bid four no-trump and went to the spade slam when North showed one ace.

How Long Have the Dinosaurs Been Extinct?

The dinosaurs, of course, lived and died in the ancient past. They are now extinct. We tend to think of them as failures, creatures who did not make a success of life here on our planet. But when you think about the entire story of the dinosaurs, you will agree that this idea is not fair. These giant reptiles dominated the earth for millions of years. This was a success story, even though the story ended long ago.

The story of the dinosaurs began about 200 million years ago when the first reptiles left the sea for life on the land. The amphibians had already established themselves in and out of the water. These salamander ancestors had grown large and the newly-arrived reptiles were small fellows. Life on land was harsh, but the reptiles thrived. they were amazing.

Amendments Eliminate Controversial Clauses

REGINA (CP)—A special session of the Saskat-chewan legislature has written into law amendments to the controversial Medical Care Insurance Act out-lined in an agreement made last week by the CCF lined in an agreement made last week by the CCF government and the medical profession.

The agreement, signed in Saskaton July 23, ended a 23-day boycott of the compulsory, prepaid and universal plan by most Saskatchewan doctors.

The coycott brought to a head a 2½ - year government - medical profession dispute over a public medical care plan.

In a one-day session—shortest in the province's history—a bill outlining the amendments was side the act, allow voluntary placed in the statutes without a dissenting vote. It received plans to operate along side with royal assent at 9:56 p.m. Thursday, prior to prorogation in the House.

Four Ways for Doctors To Be Paid

The original act was adopted at a special session last fall and tax and provincial grants, proamended during the regular session last spring. Some of the basic changes provided under idents. death of Otto Thompson, Alexandria,

Thompson was hit by a car near here Saturday while helping direct traffic around an accident in which seven persons were killed, including six members of the James Paxton family.

Killed in the head-on crash of two cars were Mr. and Mrs. Paxton, three of their daughters and a son. Patsy, 8, was in critical condition and Cindy Lou, 3, in fair condition.

The present damp, cool weather is expected to continue over the weekend, says the forest service.

However, a return to drier onditions is predicted early next week.

The highest number of new fires of any seven-day period in year was reported across B.C. this week.

There were 354; a total of 170 fires were put out, 248 still are burning.

UN, a new approach

Many articles are written about education. Educationists criticize our schools; they suggest what should be done. Yet no big changes take place and soon the cycle repeats itself.

Here for the first time I offer a complete programme of education, I will show the drastic changes that are needed, and I will demonstrate how readers can help. This is the 20th Century, the age of astronauts and antibiotics, telstars and television. Efficient offices use electronic computers, wise employers give psychological tests to employees to ensure that they do suitable work. Schools, however, still use 19th Century methods: chalkboards, mass tuition (often geared to the slowest pupil so that many are bored), non-adjustable desks for all sizes and ages, insufficient individual teaching.

I believe first that a pupil is an individual. He is so regarded by his mother who bore him. He will be so regarded by his employer when he leaves school. This means that each pupil should work at his own pace and have a course planned for him alone. It may be beneficial for him to work in a group which provides the stimulus of competition, but it is ludicrous to put him in the same group for each subject.

A boy or girl may be better at English than mathematics. Why place him or her for him alone. It may be beneficial for him to work in a group which provides the stimulus of competition, but it is ludicrous to put him in the same group for each subject.

A boy or girl may be better at English than mathematics. Why place him or her in the same group for both? Each pupil should be placed in a subject group where others are at the same stage of learning in that subject. This can be done now. It is what will be done in the future using teaching machines. We can start using it now with the personal touch.

Being treated as an individual also means regular testing. The present system generally means three examinations per subject per year. If a student is feeling ill on the day of the examination, allowance is seldom made. He may fall the year. I advocate frequent testing in all subjects—at least once a month. This means that tutor and nuril both know precisely what progress is being made.

Also, so-called modern, education tends to concentrate on academic subjects with occasional concessions to physical education. I maintain education means teaching the whole personality—mentally, physically, emotionally and spiritually. Schools are failing when they produce men who can speak two or more languages and solve simultaneous equations but who cannot cope adequately with themselves or other ocoble in personal relationships.

The advicescent should be taught to know himself, his strengths and his weaknesses. He should be taught to learn from his mistakes so that he does not repeat them. He should be taught to cope with personal problems and with people. He should be given responsibility and taught to use it properly.

These attributes can be taught and they must be taught in an adequate programme of education.

A great deal of nonsense is also talked about religious education. I have taught

These attributes can be taught and they must be taught in an adequate programme of education.

A great deal of nonsense is also talked about religious education. I have taught so-called "ron-denominational" religion for many years and never had a single comblaint from any parent or church minister. A child should be taught about religion and the various churches that exist in his country, so that when he is grown up he can choose to worship God in the way God has created him. We all taye of its differing; some are happier worshipping of delaborately and others simply. It is again a matter for the individual and for educating the individual. That from these enrichments, the educational programme I envisage would include all that the Public Schools offer and much more as well. Government inspectors would be welcome anytime. Parents and others interested would also be welcome. Dupils could be enrolled at any time of the year and age would be no barrier. That is a brief outline of my programme of education, based on 15 years' wide experience as a teacher. I have the nucleus of a staff who agree with these principles, and a number of parents have agreed to send their boys as day pupils or boarders and to pay fees.

Government restrictions have meant that the original arrangements for financing the school through a bank have fellen through.

Are there public-spirited people in Victoria who would lend $20,000 over three years to start the school? Alternatively is there anyone who would rent a (very large) house with grounds for the purpose?

WRECKAGE OF U.S. SEAPLANE CARRYING 13 SEEN IN LUZON

MANILA (AP)—The wreckage of a U.S. Navy seapiane missing with 13 airmen was sighted today on a mountain in northern Luzon Island in the Philippines, the U.S. Navy reported.

There was no immediate indication whether there are any survivors.

Two helicopters were dispatched to the scene carrying a para-medical team.

The P-5M Marlin crashed 2,400 feet up the side of a mountain about 90 miles north of Manila, the navy said.

The Marlin disappeared early Thursday while re-turning to its base at Sangley Point Naval Station after a night training mission over the South China Sea.
